DELTA DESK

DENCON

Focusing on the human means considering the body and its functions. Regularly changing position while working is crucial for health and well-being, which in turn boosts efficiency and productivity.

That's why all our desks are adjustable to suit the individual. The body can change throughout the day people are usually taller in the morning, and footwear varies.

This makes adjustable desks essential for both sitting and standing. Adequate space and airflow under the desk are also important for comfortable leg and foot movement while working.
